

Squash News

in association with prince rule the court.

Issue 2. March 5 2007.

It's here....Squash News hits your inboxes in its new format!
Marston said to be 'delighted'.

Squash News, in association with Prince® has been fully revamped and will be hitting your inboxes on a weekly basis, keeping you informed of the latest developments in and around the West Totton Astra Dome.

For news, views and witty observation, there's only one place to look. All new Squash News.

Durkin hits back at critics:

Rich Durkin blasted the critics who said he'd 'Never play again' with a strong performance, in last week's 'Trainer of blood' Classic. The 30-year-old veteran was back on court and looked in good shape after the career-threatening injury. "I never once thought about retirement", he said after game one, "The wristband kept me strong".

Buckley 'fury' at backhand serve of wrath:

Tommi Buckley was said to be 'furious' after Kev Durks unleashed the backhand 'death-serve' after a strong start in Thursday's 'Rambo Face-Off'. In a rare interview, the Fin commented 'You either live for something, or die for squash'. Durkin later suffered, as Buckley upped the punishment at Solent Uni's 'Gym of pain.'

Welcome Return for DP:

Dan 'The Hit-Man' Pollinger returned to action last week, after recovering from his 'lady-boy' related injuries. Although still unable to sit down, Pollinger, suffering from jet-lag, put in some hard yards, but was powerless to stop Phil 'The Gazelle' Marston. "I'll be back and ready for action next week", he commented. We're looking forward to seeing him at the Astra Dome too.

Marston doping enquiry continues:

29 year old Marston will again testify before the Grand Jury of Squash Justice, that he has never knowingly taken performance enhancing drugs. Speaking exclusively to Squash News, he stated: "I'm being made a scapegoat. I will clear my name, and will be certain to play in the 'Craig David Testimonial' next week." The trial continues.

Be Sure to keep it locked to Squash News. More insights from the Arena next week.